

Kathy Janzen is the Executive Director of the ACPA. She earned her Honours BSc in Biochemistry from the University of Alberta and had a 25-year career as a forensic toxicologist with the RCMP in Edmonton. Kathy spent more than ten years as an entrepreneur with start up experience. She is a former president of the ACPA and Council Chair of the FCPC. Her career has made her keenly aware of professional ethics.

Nils Petersen is Professor Emeritus in Chemistry from UofA and Western. He was a Professor of Chemistry, Chair of Chemistry, and Vice-President Research at Western. He served as Director General at the NRC for the National Institute of Nanotechnology at the University of Alberta. His career as an academic and research leader has provided much exposure to ethical behaviour.

Stephen Urquhart is Professor of Chemistry at the UofS with 20 years of experience in teaching and research at the Canadian Light Source. He has taught research and professional ethics in the Chemistry graduate program and helped to develop research conduct and ethics policy as a UofS Council committee chair and member. He is former President of the ACPS and one of its founding members.